

Hannah Haag
Community Outreach Coordinator

Hannah joined the Washington State Board of Health as a Community Outreach Coordinator on October 1, 2021. Prior to joining the board, Hannah worked as the Program Manager for the Economic Resilience Initiative at the YWCA of Seattle – King County – Snohomish County, working on racial justice in the financial industry and supporting financial wellbeing for communities furthest from opportunity. Hannah holds an MA from Antioch University Seattle in Organizational Development and has over 15 years of experience in the nonprofit sector, including community organizing, leadership development, immigrant rights, and financial education and coaching, both in Latin America and the United States. When she's not fighting racial and financial injustice, she's playing with her two kids outside, gardening, or hiking with her family.

Tracy Schreiber, MURP
Health Policy Analyst

Tracy Schreiber joins the State Board of Health as a Health Policy Analyst responsible for conducting Health Impact Reviews.

Prior to joining the Board, Tracy was at the Washington State Department of Commerce as a Commerce specialist working on childcare policy and programs, small business initiatives, legislative provisos and fiscal note analysis. She worked in the City of Portland for the late Portland City Commissioner Nick Fish as the Arts Affordability lead, focused on arts and cultural policy and programmatic development. Prior work experience includes programmatic and engagement work in the creative sector at the Washington State Arts Alliance Foundation, small business development at the Roaring Fork Business Resource Center, and workforce development at Workforce Southwest Washington. Tracy has experience conducting quantitative and qualitative analysis with an equity lens and research on a range of topics.

Tracy earned her Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Dance from Cornish College of the Arts in Seattle, and her Master of Urban and Regional Planning degree from Portland State University.

Nathan Thai
Communications Consultant

Nathan Thai joins the State Board of Health as a Communications Consultant. Nathan brings 2 years of communications and 6 years of customer service experience to his position. Nathan provides support by assisting in the maintenance of the Board's external communications platforms.

Nathan graduated from Washington State University with a bachelor's degree in Strategic Communications. He most recently provided communications and customer service work for the Department of Health's Center for Public Affairs division. After working with the Department of Health, Nathan's interest in both external and internal communications work flourished. His work involved responding to public inquiries and assisting colleagues with their communications products.