

Andrew Kamali, MPH
Health Policy Advisor

Andrew Kamali joined the Washington State Board of Health on May 1, 2023. He supports policy work and rulemaking related to environmental public health and disease prevention.

Prior to joining the Board, Andrew worked at The Water Collaborative of Greater New Orleans as a policy fellow, where he worked to develop equitable policy recommendations, study PFAS contamination, and support community workshops on storm water fee development in the city of New Orleans. Prior to that, Andrew worked in a myriad of research positions including studying the effects of indoor allergens on childhood respiratory diseases and novel drug treatment development for traumatic brain injury.

Andrew received his Bachelor of Arts degree in International Development studies from the University of California, Los Angeles, and his Master of Public Health in Health Policy from Tulane University.
